Section 1

Introduction

On September 19, 2025, President Trump signed a proclamation to restrict the entry into the US of H-1B alien workers in specialty occupations, requiring a $100,000 payment to accompany or supplement H-1B visa petitions for new applications. Since then, implementation of the proclamation has caused confusion among employers and H-1B holders. On June 8, 2026, a federal judge struck down the $100,000 surcharge and ruled that it was an unauthorized tax that violated the Administrative Procedure Act and the Constitution. Twenty states had sued to block the fee. On July 24, 2026, the First Circuit Court of Appeals denied the Trump administration's request to stay the district court judgement pending appeal. For now, USCIS should not require the $100,000 payment.

On December 29, 2025, USCIS published a final rule that will replace the prior random lottery process for the selection of new H-1B visas with a system that prioritizes the allocation of visas to higher skilled and higher paid foreign workers.

To provide employers with some information about the new H-1B visa requirements and the varying aspects and issues to consider, this roundup provides links to government information, third-party analyses, news articles, and viewpoints. The aggregated content in each section is organized in reverse chronological order and is by no means comprehensive. The content also does not necessarily reflect Mercer's or the authors' point of view on the subject.

Section 2

Highlights

The H-1B visa program is designed to help US employers fill positions that require specialized knowledge and skills not readily available in the domestic labor market. Examples of specialty occupations include architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology and the arts.

On September 19, 2025, President Trump signed the “Restriction on Entry of Certain Nonimmigrant Workers,” proclamation designed to take “an important, initial, and incremental step to reform the H-1B visa program to curb abuses and protect American workers.” Other planned H-1B changes were also included in the proclamation. Guidance in response to the proclamation has been issued by US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), US Customs and Border Protection (CBP), the Department of State (DOS), and the Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

The proclamation:

- Requires a $100,000 payment to accompany any new H-1B visa petitions submitted from September 21, 2025. DOS (including consulates and embassies) will verify receipt of the payment and will only approve those H-1B visa stamp applications for which the employer has paid the required fee. Employers are required to retain documentation of payment remittance.
- Authorizes DHS and DOS to coordinate to take all necessary and appropriate action to implement the proclamation. Guidance has since been issued by USCIS, CBP and DOS.
- Includes an exception for employees working for a company or working in an industry, if the Secretary of Homeland Security determines, in her discretion, that the hiring of such individuals as H-1B specialty occupation workers is in the national interest and does not pose a threat to the security or welfare of the US.
- Became effective on September 21, 2025, and is effective for 12 months — but may be extended.

However, on June 8, 2026, a federal judge struck down the $100,000 surcharge and ruled that it was an unauthorized tax that violated the Administrative Procedure Act and the Constitution. On July 24, 2026, the First Circuit Court of Appeals denied the Trump administration’s request to stay the district court judgement pending appeal. For now, USCIS should not require the $100,000 payment.

On December 29, 2025, USCIS published a final rule — Weighted Selection Process for Registrants and Petitioners seeking to file cap-subject H-1B petitions — that replaces the prior random lottery process for the selection of new H-1B visas with a system that prioritizes the allocation of visas to higher skilled and higher paid foreign workers. This final rule took effect on February 27, 2026, and will be in place for the FY 2027 H-1B cap registration season. The new system applies to both the H-1B regular cap of 65,000 visas and the U.S. advanced degree exemption of 20,000 visas.
